

SUMMARY

- Highly adaptable career changer with over a year as a full-time web development student and currently engaged in a hands-on software engineering bootcamp. Skilled in team collaboration, feature delivery, bug fixes, and innovative problem-solving to add value to a company.
- I have built projects focusing on writing clean, modular, reusable, extensible, and scalable code. This was achieved by using modern languages and technologies such as TypeScript, React, React Native, and Node.js.
- I have gained a comprehensive understanding of the real work environment through continuous mentorship with a software engineer. In these sessions I have applied the Agile/ scrum methodology to plan, organise, and estimate tasks, address challenges, and engaged in code reviews and meetings.

- Weather Forecast App. (Link here) A responsive web application which allows users to access current and future weather information for a selected location. Built using Vite, TypeScript, ReactJS, Styled Components, and React Select.
- Portfolio. (Link here) This web application is a modern, responsive and visually appealing website to showcase my front-end skills. The website is built using a range of powerful tools and technologies, including Webpack, React, TypeScript, Styled-Components, and GSAP.

PAST EXPERIENCES AND TRANSFERABLE SKILLS

Despite not being related to software development, working as a freelancer dietitian/ intern dietitian at a hospital has equipped me with important skills that will help me to be a well-rounded software developer.

- Developed strong communication, time management and self-learning skills.
- Demonstrated the ability to effectively manage multiple projects with integrity and quality assurance.
- Collaborated with a multi-professional team of doctors, nurses, physiotherapists, and administrators to provide meticulous attention to detail when calculating nutrients and supplements for high-risk patients in a fast-paced environment.
- By identifying patterns, developed an efficient document that increased productivity and optimised dietitians' work by automating the calculation of patient supplementation reducing at least 30 minutes per prescription.
